ANOTHER LETTER FROM CARRSVILLE

Which Contains The News From That Thriving Mining Port.

"The making of a zinc mine in Western Kentucky and how it was done," is being put up by a typewriter for publication. It will be profusely illustrated by photographs taken by one of Eastman's 3 A kodaks provided Houston Orme, the kodak dispenser at Marion, will furnish the kodak on long time and on small payments.

The Ohio river can be depended upon two or three times annually to perform more stunts than any traveling troupe of monkeys on the road. It is busy just now in all of its varied phases from stealing a lumber yard and floating it down stream to drowning live stock and moving corn crops without the owner's consent. The crest of this particular flood, will pass Carrsville sometime on Saturday or Sunday it is hoped, although one never can be sure what the river will do.

Many of the mining shafts here and across the river in southern Illinois are greatly bothered with surface water, and find it a difficult task to continue raising ore. The shipments are now very light.

Calvin Clark, formerly of Marion, is the assistant superintendent of the Rosiclare fluor spar mines and to him very largely is the credit due for the great tonnage of 76,000 tons shipped in 1912. Of course such an amount of fluor spar means the mining and cleaning of over 6,000 tons monthly and assuming the month has 26 days, it means over 230 tons every working day in the year, and that's sure some fluor spar.

The Grandby Mining & Smelting Co., who own and lease to mines large bodies of zinc and lead bearing lands in Joplin will commence to buy zinc ores on April 2nd, for their new smelter now being erected at St. Louis, Mo. They are quite optimistic over the yield of zinc ores in western Kentucky.

We have it upon the best of authority that the small but earnest committee, who waited upon the tariff tinkers in Washington made a profound impression upon the gentlemen having the fluor spar schedule in hand. One of the committee having that romantic titian colored hair sometimes termed burnished copper, and at others just plain brick-red, made his argument so strong that the committee was very much inclined to increase the duty to six dollars instead of the present three dollars, per ton.

Mr. Jackson, an experienced mining engineer, having had long experience in various parts of South America, visited the Carrsville mines last week and was most complimentary over the prospects as well as delighted with the concrete lining of the shaft which seemed to be new to him. He seemed very confident that the zinc ore would carry a large percentage of silver and that the work in the break where the shaft is being made indicated radium.

Mrs. O. S. Denny and son reached here Tuesday via the steamer Ruth, and will be the guests of her mother, for several days.

Smallpox is prevailing to such an extent at Rosiclare and Elizabetown, Ill., that the authorities are considering quarantining both towns.

The Rosiclare mine, which is fully half a mile of underground development in the shape of stopes and drifts is now filled with water. It is estimated it will require their entire pumping capacity to unwater this property by June 1st.

The Fairview Co., will have their largest producer, the "Blue Diggings," left for ore production, their No. 4 shaft being drowned out and their main shaft, the "Goodhope," in immediate danger of filling up.

The putting out of commission, as producers, these two mines for several months will cause the fluor spar market to at least hold present prices and probably an advance over current rates will be made by Kentucky mines.

Geo. Crider, of Marion, intimated through the Home telephone on Saturday morning that our flooded mines would not have taken water had they been insured in the "Cococolo Club," of Marion. He says he is a member and has not taken any water for months. He looks it.

The Carrsville Enterprise through its publisher, Mr. J. B. Floyd, announced its own funeral on Friday last. The paper was started some nine months since and its weekly visits were readily enjoyed by a good number of people. Editor Floyd, somehow, got the impression that he was too old to run a newspaper. He is actually the only man in the United States that ever admitted his incapacity to produce the brightest newspaper published. Just imagine, if one's imagination can go so far, Dr. Moore, Pickens, Oakley, Whitehouse, etc, etc, calmly admitting they could not run a newspaper.

Senator James' reply to Col. Roberts' request that the reefs and rocks at the Carrsville shore line be removed, is so characteristic of Ollie James' promptness that we copy his reply as follows: House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., Jan. 8, 1913.

Dear Colonel:— I am in receipt of your letter of recent date and I shall bring the matter to the attention of the War Department and see if some relief cannot be given to our part of the river.

Assuring you of my kindest regards, I am, very truly your friend, Ollie M. James.

The splendid solution of the ten questions given in the Record-Press a few weeks since, by a young lady of the Marion High School, certainly shows a wide range of instruction in that celebrated institution of learning. If it is not too bizarre a question, wont some one of the students find out and advise the Press of what service to the southern people are "chiggers" other than to cause the chigger-gee to say things not of a religious nature and to keep his finger-nails moving.

DEATHS.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Franklin died Sunday and was buried Monday at Union, Rev. M. E. Miller conducted services at the house and Rev. T. C. Carter at the grave. The little one suffered with tuberculosis.

Walter Fowler and wife lost their baby this week, it having died of bronchial pneumonia. Its remains were buried at Freedom, Rev. W. T. Oakley officiating.

GROWERS SIGN 5 YEAR POOL

Reports Received Friday Night Indicate 50 per cent favor long contract. Sentiment Strong for Bank. Several Fail to Sign Waiting for Action of Bank.

If the action of several school house meetings of tobacco growers of Henderson county Friday night can be taken as a criterion of what was done over the entire five counties embraced in the Stemming District Tobacco Association, the five year pool was almost unanimously endorsed and nearly every person at the meetings signed their crops with the association for this number of years.

ALMOST SOLID

At Hebbardsville 50 out of 52 persons present pooled their crops for five years; at Smith Mills 28 out of 35 signed up, and at Geneva every grower at the meeting nineteen in all, pooled their crop for half a decade. Another meeting will be held at Geneva today when those present last night will try to get every grower in the section to pool for the longer term.

The seven growers at the Smith Mills meeting who failed to sign up are in favor of the five-year pool, it is said, but decided not to pool at present, preferring to see what action would be taken toward the establishment of a farmers' bank to finance the move.

POOL STRONGLY INDORSED.

At the meetings held Wednesday afternoon in the magisterial districts of every county, the five-year pool was strongly endorsed in the resolutions and for this reason many meetings last night were not as largely attended, probably, as they would have been had not the sentiment been previously expressed. The meetings, last night, however, were held for the more direct purpose of securing the signatures to the five-year pool contract, thereby starting off the canvass for members with hundreds of names already enrolled.

HIGH WATER DRAWBACK

"I believe I am safe in predicting that 90 per cent of the growers present at the meetings last night, signed up for five years," said James N. Banks last night. Mr. Banks expects to receive reports from nearly all of the meetings today. He was afraid that the high water together with the magisterial meetings Wednesday at which the five-year pool was endorsed, might cut down the attendance Friday night.

The association already has men in the field canvassing for the five-year pool.

Rev. Andres Accepts

Call to Frankfort.

Rev. Ben Andres formerly of Henderson, but who has been pastor of the Pleasant Hill, Mo. Presbyterian church for several years, has accepted a call to Frankfort, Ky., and will move his family to Frankfort after March first.

His many friends in Henderson will be delighted to learn that he has been called back to his native state. The Frankfort Presbyterian church is one of the largest in the capital city. —Henderson Gleaner.

WELLS IS HELD WITHOUT BOND.

To Answer For Longnecker Murder. All Day and Half-Night Session of Court at Smithland.—The Meisbergers Testify, Turn State's Evidence.

Smithland, Ky., Jan. 16.—James Wells, charged with the brutal murder of Frank Longnecker, a Cincinnati fur-buyer, on Christmas Eve night, on an island just above here, was held to the Livingston county grand jury without bond tonight at 10 o'clock, following preliminary trial which began at 9 o'clock this morning. Pearl Wells, alias Pearl Hughes, who was arrested with Wells, was held under a $500 bond charged with being an accessory after the fact. Frank Meisberger and Bessie Ruetman, alias Meisberger, will be placed on trial tomorrow morning. They are charged jointly with being implicated in the murder also.

What tomorrow's development may bring forth is problematical. Today Meisberger and the Ruetman woman held to their original confession, and though many attempts were made to make them contradict previous statements by counsel for the defense under cross-examination, all were futile. That Wells will be convicted is the general opinion of those who heard the evidence. The stories told by Meisberger and Bessie Ruetman were corroborated by witnesses for the prosecution, whose evidence was circumstantial. There were about fifteen witnesses to testify for the prosecution. R. A. Ledbetter, W. O. Spier, Chas. Rose and John Haphron, of Elizabethtown, were introduced to tell of their having seen Longnecker, Wells, and Meisberger together in Elizabethtown, Ill., the day previous to the murder. A. O. Williams, Sam Clark, M. Brown and Jess Banbaker, of Golconda, Ill., were also witnesses for the prosecution.

Coroner W. H. Johnson testified as to the marks of violence on Longnecker's body, while Cecil Thompson and Will Bost, who discovered the body on the island, also testified as to those circumstances. J. A. Curd, foreman of the coroner's jury, and Matt Trail and Ed Kersey, of Livingston county, were additional witnesses.

Ed Cunningham and another shanty-boater, who are wintering at Paducah, testified as to Wells being with Longnecker, and also of the Meisbergers' and Welles' arrival in Paducah Christmas Day.

Edward Rose, another man who spends his time on the river swore that the dog found in the possession of Wells was the dog which belonged to Longnecker. Sheriff R. Foster and Perry Melon, a newspaper man, were introduced and told what they found on the shantyboats Wells and Meisberger were living on in Paducah.

RUCTMAN WOMAN TELLS STORY

In her statements to the court, Bessie Ruetman, alias Bessie Meisberger, the woman whose confession first startled all Smithland and Western Kentucky, told what she said was everything she knew of the murder of Longnecker.

She said her home was in Amsterdam, O., where she met Meisberger and together they came down the river in a gasoline launch to Louisville. According to her story, she and Meisenberger stayed in Louisville a few days, after which they continued on their way down the Ohio until reaching Mt. Vernon, Ind. They bought a shanty-boat at Mt. Vernon, shortly after which they met James Wells and the woman with whom he was living on a shanty-boat. Frank Longnecker was with them.

The quartette spent the night together at Mt. Vernon. The next morning they continued their journey down the Ohio. The conditions under which they agreed to go down the river together were that Longnecker and Wells would furnish the gasoline for Meisenberger, who agreed to tow the shanty boats.

Elizabethtown, Ill., was the next stop made by the Welles, Meisenbergers and Longnecker. On the morning of December 23, the three men went up to a flouring mill at Elizabethtown. That afternoon Longnecker went up by himself and secured some meal.

Early Christmas Eve morning, with the gasoline and shanty-boats, the quintette again started down the river. They passed Golconda, Ill., just about sundown on Christmas Eve tied up on the Kentucky side of Rondan Island. About 7 o'clock, Wells and Longnecker announced they were going to take a little trip by themselves. Wells secured a revolver and a butcher-knife, while Longnecker took a butcher-knife and shot-gun.

"I asked Wells where they were going and he told me they were going up the island a piece," said the Ruetman woman on the

THE MUSICAL FAVORITES.

The Musical Favorites, another number on this forthcoming course, for veritability have few equals. They will play on the saxophone, xylophone, piano, violin, cello, three banjos and three mandolins, while Arthur Love still further varies the program with

His poems and readings. The company comprises four people—Arthur Love, Leon L. Love, George L. McHenry and Nina McHenry. Mr. Love for years gave an entire evening's entertainment himself in vocal and instrumental music and humorous selections, many of them being his own composition.

The Musical Favorites are to appear on the Lyceum course of the Marion City Schools, Thursday, Jan. 30. This is not only a high class musical organization, but it is also a company of individual entertainers. There is such variety in their programs that there is never a dull moment. Regular Lyceum prices will prevail.

JESSE OLIVE SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATE

Well Known Hardware Man Outdistanced All Opponents.

In the Democratic Primary Election held here in Senator Maxwell's office last Saturday to decide which one of the eight candidates would receive the endorsement of Senator-elect James and Congressman-elect Barkley there was great interest and a large vote polled, the total of which was 454. It was an ideal day and everything passed off pleasantly. The well known politician and hardware merchant Mr. Jesse Olive was chosen, receiving 123 votes a plurality of 54 over J. W. Wilson his nearest opponent who received 79 votes.

The votes of the others were as follows: J. G. Rochester 77; G. C. Gray 75; M. O. Eskew 36; W. E. Minner 30; P. C. Stephens 16. Mrs. G. E. Boston 8.

Marion Family in South Christian

Guthrie, Ky. Jan. 20, 1913.

Editor Press,

Dear Marshall:—

Enclosed find check for $1.00 for another year's subscription to your valuable paper. You may change my address tag from Guthrie to Pembroke, Ky., R. R. 1, and tell all my friends in old Crittenden, should fate ever bring them to South Christian, midway between Hopkinsville, Ky., and Clarksville, Tenn. on the pike leading from Pembroke to Clarksville they should find a big white board painted with flashy black letters, "Reedland's Farm" to open the big red gate and come on to the house where they will find corn in the crib, hay in the mow and sow side enough in larder to stay the knowings of a hungry man's appetite until he can do better.

Lots of rain, streams unusually high, wheat and clover fields looking very fine. Respectfully, J. E. Reedland.

BUY THE BRAINS BEHIND THE CORN

It Cost One Farmer $500, but He Won Out.

THEY DETERMINE THE VALUES

Raw Material is Cheap, but the Amount of Brains Mixed With It in Manufacture Means Profit or Loss. Learn How.

Some years ago a Hoosier farmer began to breed the seed corn. At one of the great national corn shows, held at Chicago, he took the first prize for a single ear of corn. The rule governing this exhibit was that the ear taking first prize became the property of the corn show. The farmer was in despair until he learned that this "best ear in the world" would be sold at public auction to the highest bidder. He determined he must keep this ear of corn for seed on his own farm at any cost. HE BOUGHT THE EAR FOR $500.

Every one said he was crazy to pay such a price for a single ear of corn. Of course any other ear of the same weight and costing about 1 1/2 cents would have fed as much stock or made as many cornmeal batter cakes for breakfast. Why was he willing to pay such a huge price for the corn? He was not buying corn at all. HE WAS BUYING THE BRAINS BEHIND ITS PRODUCTION.

Raw material is cheap; the amount of brains mixed with it in its manufacture fixes its market value. A piece of window glass is cheap; a watch crystal is more expensive; a lens for a fine camera is quite expensive; the objective for a great telescope may cost a small fortune. What is true of corn or any raw material is true of men. A fine, strong, vigorous man can be bought for $2 as a laborer. Mix brains enough for him to handle a section gang, and he will bring $3 per day. Mix brains enough to fit him for a conductor, and he will bring $4 to $5 per day on the market.

Enough brains to handle a great railroad system, and he brings $100 per day on the open market.

All values in the market of the world are educated brain values. The cheapest education is the best. For the efficient, well educated man is the high priced commodity.

Painting and Grapefruit.

"You say that teacher wants you to get some paint and a paint brush. Bobby?" exclaimed a farmer.

"Yes, sir, to paint pictures with," answered his eight-year-old hopeful.

"Do you know when I went to school I had lots of old blue back spellers an' hickory ile an' no frills or fur-belows. I reckon I'll have to get 'em for you, but it looks like a plumb waste of time, this paintin' of pictures."

His good wife smiled behind her glasses and kept on sewing. Some time later, when Bobby was fast asleep, she adroitly asked the man enveloped in the blue haze of White Sulphur, "Rob, what did you get when you were in town this afternoon?"

"Why, I got those repairs for the shredder that had come by express, an' I saw some nice grapefruit an' oranges an' brought a few along. Why?"

"What was the use of bringin' them home? You knew we had plenty of bacon, potatoes, beans an' coffee in the pantry, didn't you?"

Gradually the man struggled out of the smoke long enough to exclaim: "One reason I got 'em was to please you. Great Scott, don't you ever get worked out, tired to death of fat meat an' coffee, woman?"

"Of course I do, an' I like grapefruit an' all kinds of odds an' ends to give me an appetite for the plain, substantial things. But," and a pleasant, mischievous smile spread over her soft, motherly face, "you an' I were raised on fat meat, coffee an' lots of hickory ile, weren't we, Rob?"

For a moment the man's face wore a puzzled look. Suddenly his face cleared, and he laughed heartily and said: "I reckon I was kinder hard on Bobby just now. You are right—things are different now, an' they're a lot better than they used to be. I see what you are drivin' at, mother. Yes, the teacher wants to use the paintin' like a kind er relish or side dish to keep up their appetite for the rest of the everyday school grub."

The natural resources of any country are limited. The only resource that is without a limit is human brains.

Notice to All Road Hands.

On motion at a special term of Fiscal court of Jan. 7, 1913, it was ordered that the roads of Crittenden county be worked by hands to be warned in by the County Road Engineer, or his assistants, and all able bodied male citizens of the county over the age of 18 years and under the age of 50 years, except licensed ministers of the gospel, and citizens of incorporated towns and cities, are required to provide themselves with necessary tools and implements, and to work on public roads of the county, not exceeding two days in a week and six days in each year, provided, however that any road hand may pay to the county engineer, the sum of three dollars, ($3.00) on or before the 1st day of June, of any year, and upon payment of said sum, he will thereby be released from work upon the road during the said year. The County Road Engineer shall immediately pay over said sum so paid to him, to the county treasurer, who shall place same to the credit of road fund, and same shall be applied and used in the employment of graders, plows, and teams and hands to work upon the roads of the county when needed. And said treasurer shall keep a separate account of such funds from that paid to him by the sheriff.

In employing hands to work upon said roads the County Engineer shall pay the prevailing wages in the neighborhood where said work is done, not however, to exceed $1.50 nor less than $1.00 per day, for each day of eight hours. In view of this fact I am now prepared to give receipts to all who want to pay,

Egypt Has Wonderful

Agricultural Facilities.

(Philadelphia Enquirer.)
In Egypt a puppet king, known as the Khedive, who is simply a vassal of the British crown, has just opened a ceremonial dedication of the elevation of the Assouan dam. The object of this engineering work is simply to add 1,000,000 acres to the cultivable fields of Egypt. As well-watered lands in Egypt are worth $600 per acre, it may be understood that here is a chance for large extension of agricultural facilities.

It is significant that this increase in the wealth of Egypt is sufficient to pay the whole debt of the country, most of which has come down from a former generation, when Ismail Pasha was the ruler of the Nile and borrowed about $600,000,000, for which he possibly got 20 per cent, value, and plunged his country into political and financial difficulties which are still in the course of settlement.

It is a marvelous exposition of modern science that its application is producing results which, could they have been accomplished five or seven thousand years ago, would have changed the history of the world.

What irrigation has done for the arid valley of the Nile and for all Egypt in a measure, good turnpikes would do for old Crittenden. If we could persuade ourselves to spend $100,000.00 on turnpikes and iron bridges the wealth or value of the county would be enhanced a half million dollars immediately.

Is Aviation Lawful?

Continued aviation fatalities raise the question whether mankind has any right to risk their lives in the conquest of the air. That either men or angels can do a thing does not imply the moral right. Prior to the flood the angels had power to appear in human form, but instead of using that power in a legitimate attempt to aid mankind to resist the encroachments of sin, they undertook to infuse new life into the dying race by marrying human wives and rearing families.

The record is, "The sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair and they took them wives." (Gen. 6:7), with the result "that there were giants in those days....when....the daughters of men....bare children unto them." The same became mighty men which were of old men of renown"; Gen. 6:4 These angels thus sinned against the law of their beings, and in mercy to us God sent the flood to wipe their hybrid posterity from the earth. Since then the fathers of those unauthorized children have been forbidden to appear in human form, and their only way of making themselves known to men now is through spirit mediums and other devotees of the black arts.

If these angels thus sinned, not against a written law, but against the law of their being. Is not man sinning against a law of his being in attempting the conquest of an element in which he is by nature entirely helpless? It seems probable. One thing is certain—when Messiah's kingdom is established in the earth "they shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain (kingdom)." (Isa. 11:9). Every improper and useless thing including the microbes of disease and pestilence, will be destroyed; and unless it can be made to serve some real purpose so that it will aid transportation instead of war it is hard to see why its continued use will be permitted.

Stories of the Town

Things Serious and Frivolous Talked About on the Streets of the County Hub.

CHASED BY THE SHERIFF

(Reported by R. C. Haynes.)

"That sheriff gentleman," said Zebulum, in continuation of his story to the assembled listeners in the barber shop, "was a remarkable man, as were likewise the deputy, the town marshal, Solomon Wiggleford and Highfield Jones.

"These men had been chosen by the voters of Crittenden county to their official positions principally on account of their long and supple lower limbs—same as now—and because of their willingness to use them on all occasions where the majesty of the law and the dignity of the commonwealth had been trampled upon, same as now.

"It might be asked, gentlemen, why did not these officials mount their horses and pick me up at once. There are two reasons, I think, why the sheriff did not choose to do so. In the first place, I was right there, almost in their grasp, and their horses were away in their stables, unbridled and unsaddled. If they had left me to go for their horses, I could have bounced over fences, darted through thickets and into the woods, where they could not have followed horseback. In those days one could go from Marion to Fords Ferry entirely through the woods, which were very dense, without once getting into the open.

"In the second place, the sheriff was a brave man and he chose to pick me up in a way that would reflect the bravery that he possessed. I was there in sight, afoot and unarmed. Would it have been a famous victory, as little Peterkin would express it, for them to have picked me up with horses and guns and bloodhounds? Did the hare gain any honors for winning the race over the tortoise? Asop intimates that it did not. Does the engineer get a raise in salary when he bumps up against the unfortunate cow whose unsound judgement leads her to believe she can outrun the locomotive?

Does a driver of an automobile show forth any moral, intellectual, or even financial superiority when he overhauls the driver of a farm wagon who chooses to lead the procession up the public highway?

"You can see, gentlemen, how it was with the sheriff. He chose to make the arrest in a way that would be a credit to him and his able assistants. Some day in the far future, when sitting round his evening fireside with his grandchildren on his knees, he could relate to the inquisitive little Peterkins the story of how he ran down and brought to justice the fleet-footed scoundrel who struck Bobby Broadway and put his lights out.

"With this little digression, gentlemen, which I hope you will pardon, I will proceed with my story. The sheriff and his followers had, as I have said, gone in full headway down the road toward Panther Hollow, on hot trail of the black suit of clothes, said clothes being accompanied by my young friend Nibbs, who was running as if his grandfather had fallen overboard. At the same time I, in the night-gray suit, was making long strides down the Fords Ferry road toward the home of Squire Brownlow, where not only Nell was waiting in wedding habiliments and confiding expectancy, but the minister and guests were also assembled.

"When, as I have said, I heard the yells of my unbridled pursuers off to the west, I knew they had overtaken Nibbs, learned their mistake and had taken the back trail. In my tired, almost exhausted condition, it would be only a matter of a short time until they were, like so many demons, on to me again. Fortunately, the road was now down grade, and I trudged on and on, going in a trot and never losing thought of escape.

"I had gone about two miles when I came to a field where a crowd of men were rolling logs, preparing the ground for fall plowing. When I got opposite the field I climbed the fence and walked leisurely over to where the men were at work. I knew most of them by name. I spoke to them and went in amongst them, as if I had come to help in the log-rolling. I saw one young man with whom I was very well acquainted and I called him out to one side.

"'Jobo,' I said to him, something after the manner I had said to Nibbs, 'that is a dandy suit of clothes you've got on. How'll you trade with me?' He was in his shirt-sleeves, but he had on a brown vest and trousers and a coat to match same was on a stump nearby. He examined my light gray suit, something after the manner of a horse jockey examining the hide of the horse belonging to his intended victim, then proposed an even trade. I accepted the proposition without equivocation, and we got behind a big pile of logs and made the exchange. I took the license once more from the light gray suit and transferred it to the brown suit.

"'Jobo,' I said to him, just as I had said to Nibbs, 'a crowd of men will come down the road presently and if they should leave the road and climb over the fence into the field, you light out across the field as fast as you limber legs will carry you, and when they overtake you tell them you were running because you are in a hurry to get home to your mother, who is not well; that you swapped suits simply as a matter of business. Tell them you have adopted clothes-trading as a profession, then propose trading clothes with the leader of the gang, asking him considerable boot, gradually coming down to even trade, or even offer him a better boot—anything to hold his attention and to prolong the conversation.'

"Jobo agreed to do so and we walked back to where the others were at work, grabbed up a couple of handspikes; and became two of the busiest log-rollers in the whole outfit. We had not been at work long, however, until I saw a cloud of dust rising up the road and knew they were coming. Soon they emerged into sight and came down the road lick-a-ty split, the sheriff in the lead and Highfield Jones, as usual, bringing up the rear. For some reason, ever since the wreck near Crooked Creek, Highfield seems to have been relegated to the rear.

"When they got opposite the field, the sheriff stopped, evidently looking for my tracks, then left the road and bounced over the fence, followed by the others. No sooner had the sheriff's feet hit the ground on the inside of the fence than Jobo threw down his handspike and lit out across the field at a great rate, going northeast in the direction of Weston.

"Coming to a fence, Jobo turned a handspring over into another field. Here weeds grew thick and tall, with a profusion of white and yellow flowers in about equal proportions. I could tell the direction Jobo had taken only by the motion of the flowers as he plunged on, parting the weeds as he went.

"When the sheriff and his followers saw the light gray suit of clothes flying across the field they started in that direction in hot pursuit, paying no attention to the log-rollers.

"On they went across the field in full speed and with seeming new energy, thinking, no doubt, that now, since they had at last got the fugitive to leave the road, they would soon pick him up—coming to the fence where Jobo had gone over, the sheriff, placing one foot on the middle rail of the panel and his hands on the top rail, bounded over on the other side. The town marshal, coming up to the fence right behind the sheriff and seeking to imitate his leader's example, placing his foot and hands in the identical position on the fence and made a desperate leap for the other side. Unfortunately, the marshal was a heavier man than the sheriff, and when he was about midway across the fence the rail broke, throwing the marshal over, head foremost and downward, with his feet in the air. I could see his long legs shoot up and over and down, at all kinds of angles, enroute to terra firma. By grab, I never saw such a fall as the marshal got; and, before his feet reached the ground, his heels came in contact with the sheriff's back, exciting that officer so that he stumbled over a projecting root and went sprawling to the ground.

"I couldn't hear, of course, what was said, but they evidently wasted no time in explanation as to how the accident occurred; for, by the time the deputy, Solomon Wiggleford and Highfield Jones had got over the fence, the two officers had got to their feet, adjusted themselves and had started off in full tilt in the direction taken by the occupant of the light gray suit of clothes.

"Off they went, pell-mell, through the weeds, and soon became invisible to me, save now and then I could see the town marshal's head bob up through the yellow and white blossoms as the pursuers of the light gray suit plunged wildly on, as if more determined than ever to overtake and capture the scoundrel who struck Bobby Broadway.

"What in the Sem Hill are those officers chasing? Jobo Johnson for?" spoke up one of the log rollers; 'Jobo ain't been violatin' no law—hasn't even been tradin' horses with nobody. Recon they're crazy, Zebulum?"

"Dogdissimo," I replied, as I threw down my handspike and started off toward the road as fast as my legs would carry me, wearing Jobo's brown suit of clothes. As I climbed over the fence into the road, I glanced back. The men had stopped and stood, with handspikes in their hands, gazing at my retreating figure as if I had been an escaped lunatic.

"I lost no time in getting off down the road toward Ford's Ferry, going at a long trot. I must make good my temporary advantage, I reflected. So I ran on and on, expecting every minute to hear the approaching yells of the sheriff and his followers. I was now about three miles from the river and less than that from the home of Squire Brownlow. Would I ever reach the home of my lovely Nell, who was suspicious of the terrible net into which I had been so unextricably drawn, was waiting for me? Would I ever see her again and clasp her in my arms as my bride? Or would I be overtaken by my relentless pursuers, dragged back to the now despised town of Marion, thrown into jail, tried, convicted and sent to the penitentiary or the gallows, on the charge of having struck the lamented Bobby Broadway and of putting an everlasting quietus on his confounded career.

"These thoughts passed through my mind as, with weary limbs, I ran on and on. Though tired of body and mind, I did not give up. Feeling in my pocket to see if the license was still there, I took courage and trudged on.

"When I had gone about a mile I looked toward the east through an open space in the woods and saw the sheriff and his party, about a half a mile away, coming toward me. They had adopted new tactics, coming silently but swiftly, evidently intending to head me off.

"The sight of them stealing thus upon me somehow aroused my combativeness, and I forced myself forward with increased speed. I was now in a neighborhood where I was well acquainted, and presently I came to a farm house by the side of the road. I must do something, I reflected, or they will surely get me. They have these brown clothes spotted and will follow them to the jumping off place—I must get rid of them.

"With these reflections, I passed through the gate, walked up the path to the house and knocked on the door. A woman came to the door.

"Why, good afternoon, Zebulum," she said. "My, you look as tired and wornout and done up as Jacob's off ox. Come in and have a seat." I went in but did not sit down.

"Mrs. Nolan," I said, 'is Jacob at home?' She replied that he was somewhere on the farm, she didn't know just where. She then went out on the back porch and yelled: 'Lake—oh!'

"Don't call him from his work, Mrs. Nolan," I said, 'but I would like to borrow a suit of clothes for a day or so.' 'Why, certainly you can, Zebulum,' she replied obligingly. 'His best suit is in the next room in the wardrobe—get right in there and help yourself. My old man never wears them except Sundays when he goes to church. You are more than welcome to them.'

"I walked out into the designated room, closing the door behind me, and lost no time in getting into the wardrobe. There hung Jacob Nolan's best suit of clothes, and right alongside hung his wife's Sunday dress. A fellow in my situation will naturally think of things that people otherwise situated would never dream of. I thought what a good disguise it would be if I should put on Mrs. Nolan's Sunday dress. The thought no sooner struck me than it was put into execution. In two minutes I had taken off Jobo's brown suit and was rigged out in woman's apparel, hat and all. The hat was a flat concern with a broad brim, which hung down scoop-like on either side, completely hiding my ears. I was only twenty and young looking with no beard on my face and after I had completed my toilet I glanced into a glass on the dresser, and I confessed to myself that I made a right good-looking woman. Her shoes were too small for me to wear, but the skirt was long and hid my feet to perfection. I took the license out of the brown suit and fumbled around among the folds and ruffles of the skirt, but could not find anything resembling a pocket. For once I was bluffed. What should I do with the precious license? Finally I found a pocket in my shirt and put the paper into that.

"I am much obliged to you, Mrs. Nolan," I called out without opening the door. 'Oh, you are welcome,' she replied, 'How do they fit?' My hair stood straight upon my head with fear, lest she should come and investigate for herself.

"Oh, perfectly, Mrs. Nolan. Good-bye," I said and I made a hasty exit, going out of the back door, through the kitchen into the yard, and behind the smokehouse into the road.

"I had no sooner reached the road, by grab, than I saw the sheriff and his party coming down the hill toward me, lickatly split. They had laid aside their silent tactics and again adopted noise and bluff. Down the road they came, the sheriff in the lead and the others bunched up in disorder but following closely on his heels, all yelling and pawing and cavorting and waving their hands, like Kickapoos on the warpath.

"I knew now that it would be useless for me to run—I could only trust to my disguise. The only chance to escape capture was to avoid detection. So I paid no apparent attention to my pursuers, but, giving my skirt a peculiar little swing. I walked leisurely down the road, admiring the beautiful tints of the autumn leaves, as they hung in purple and yellow and red, on the trees above my head. I could hear the tramp, tramp of their feet, but paid no attention to it, and when they got right up behind me I was singing, in a care-free way and in a happy, girl-like voice, 'If you love me, Mollie, darling, Put your little hand in mine.'

S. D. T. A. NEWS.

BY JAMES N. BANKS.

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 17, 1913.

To the Members of the Stemming District Tobacco Association in the Counties of Henderson, Union, Webster, Hopkins and Crittenden:

We are asked many times each day as to what will be done with the present crop, and we as your representatives feel that you are entitled to know how we are progressing with the sale.

We have been thus far to sell the tobacco at the price you fixed, namely eight cents, and we had magisterial meetings over the five counties held on Wednesday, the 15th, to ascertain from the members if we should lower the price, as the buyers had informed us they would not buy a pound at the price fixed by the association heretofore. From the instructions that we have now in hand from the membership over the five counties we feel that we cannot do otherwise than hold for eight cents, and we therefore are giving you notice that the buyers have informed us today that they will not give the price.

CONFERRED WITH BUYERS

Our manager had a conference Friday with the Imperial Tobacco Company's representative, Mr. Edwin Hodge, the Julian Regie's representative, Mr.
Thomas Hodge, and the Gallaher, Limited, company's manager, Mr. William Michaels, and all of these gentlemen say they will not pay eight cents for the present crop. The Imperial representative indicated that they would take three and a half million pounds of dried tobacco at seven cents and a half million pounds of undried tobacco at six and a half cents; Mr. Michaels for the Gallaher, Limited, company, would make no offer of any kind.

We do not feel that we can accept these prices and are adjourning to our several homes and wish to instruct our members to keep their tobacco hanging in their barns, and if they have taken any of it down for stripping when they have finished stripping it, we would like for them to hang it back in the barn, for as we said above we cannot accept the price, and we do not think it best to handle it ourselves for the present.

WANTS DIFFERENT CONTRACT

Mr. Edwin Hodge, representative of Imperial Tobacco company, and Mr.
Michaels of the Gallaher, Limited company insist on putting a clause in any contract that they might make in buying this year's crop which would mean that if the grader and the receiver could not agree on the price of any tobacco that might be damaged, dirty or beaten, such tobacco should be taken away from the factory. Last season the contract read that if any tobacco was damaged, dirty or hail beaten the price should be fixed by the grader and the receiver, and if the two could not agree a third disinterested party should be called in, whose decision in the matter should be final. The above two firms referred to now insist that they must be the judge whether tobacco is damaged, dirty or hailbeaten.

We do not think, representing self-respecting farmers, that we could agree to or sign any such contract, for we must insist that buyers in trading with us shall treat us as their equals and on the same footing, and must not ask any consideration that they would not give us. We therefore insist that we cannot sell tobacco to any one unless we are on equal footing with them.

THOMAS HODGE LIBERAL

Mr. Thomas Hodge does not insist on this clause being in his contract but would be willing to have the same contract as last year in which the grader and receiver should fix the price on any damaged, dirty or hail beaten tobacco, and if they cannot agree, a third disinterested party must be called in. Mr. Hodge says that this is fair he thinks and that he has had no trouble in the past in receiving tobacco from the association under this contract.

As the buyers practically refuse to take this tobacco at a price that we could afford to sell it, we advise members to keep their tobacco hanging in the barns and cut out the next crop for if we are compelled to sell tobacco at a cost less than the cost of production, we can see no benefit in growing it, and the farmer will be very much better off to cut out the tobacco crop entirely, than to grow it and give it to the tobacco buyers for less than it cost him to produce.

MAY SELL LATER

Possibly later on the buyers will conclude that the farmers will not grow tobacco at any price that they may feel disposed to give them, and will take our present holdings at better figures than they have offered. We therefore strongly recommend to the growers of tobacco in the counties covered by the Stemming District Tobacco Association to keep their tobacco until they can sell it for a fair price and grow no tobacco in 1913.

In conclusion we point to the record of the Stemming District Tobacco association since its beginning under the different administrations, and affirm that it has ever been scrupulously lawful in all of its dealings, and has never countenanced any acts against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Kentucky and will not do so in the future.

Respectfully,

R. H. SELLARS,
Chairman Henderson County,

B. E. LAFFOON,
Chairman Hopkins County,

I. G. NANCE,
Chairman Webster County,

F. I. TRAVIS,
Chairman Crittenden County,

J. B. LYNN,
Chairman Union County.

Glasgow, Ky., Jan. 17.—Mr.

Hardin County Railroad.

It seems now certain that Hardin county is to have a railroad, the work on the right of way of the Gulf Lines Connecting Railroad has now progressed so far that there seems to be no question as to the completion of the road as far as Rosiclare at least within the next few months.

The road bed is graded the greater portion of the way from Golconda to Grandpierre Creek and the ties and rails are down for several miles, the remainder of the rails are already bought by the company for the entire road and several car loads are now at Golconda and more are on the road. The engineers came up to Rosiclare Monday expecting to begin the survey into that point laying out the right of way but on account of the water over the low lands between that place and Grandpierre Creek decided to wait until the water receded to begin work.

The management of the road say the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible and say the entire line will be completed within the next twelve months.

Aside from the line up to Rosiclare the road as proposed will cross the North-West corner of Hardin county, running West of Hicks and Karbers Ridge and opening up the coal fields of Gallatin county, the sale of which was mentioned in our last weeks paper. While we would like very much for the road to come to Elizabethtown, yet it will be much more convenient for us than now even if it comes no further than Rosiclare, while for that to mean a future, bright indeed. With its present rapid growth augmented by being made a railroad town it is hardly possible to tell what Rosiclare will amount to within the next two or three years. This road if completed along the present right of way across the county will also make it possible to operate the Dr. Martin mines, the Hamp mines, the Lee Deyel-opement Company mines and probably other inland mines, none of which can now run at a profit owing to lack of transportation.

Crisp--Bennett.

On Dec. 28, 1912, Mr. Omer Crisp and Miss Beatrice Bennett were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the Gill Hotel in Marion, Ky., by Rev. W. T. Oakley. The bride is one of Crittenden county's loveliest girls and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
J. W. Bennett, and was organist and sec'y of the Weston church.
She will be greatly missed by all.
The groom is the son of our well known farmer, Mr. Butler Crisp and wife; he is a splendid young man and loved by all his friends. The young couple will make their future home on his father's farm near Mattoon.
We wish them happiness and success through life.

W. V. Haynes of Nashville was here last week on a business trip but has returned home.

Mrs. W. V. Haynes of Nashville, Tenn., is the guest of her mother, Mrs. M. E. Croft on South Main Street.

16 lbs. best granulated sugar $100. WILBORN'S GROCERY. WANTED—Issue of Sept, 12th, 1912, for which we will pay 10 cents.

—The Crittenden Record-Press.

Dr. Geo. W. Stone and wife are expected back here Feb. 1st, from Texas and the west where they have been travelling, and will occupy their nice brick cottage on South Main Street.

"Variety is the spice of life." That is what we shall give patrons of the Lycem Course Thursday Jan. 30.

Will Carnahan and wife have moved to J. B. Hubbard's and Dan Stone and family have moved to the Carnahan home which they purchased last week.

J. L. James has sold his nice cottage on east Depot Street to R. S. Elkins, one of the county's best men who will locate here in the near future.

J. S. G. Green who has had a bad spell of the grip and was confined to his room for several days is now better and able to be up and out on the streets.

5 lbs. regular 25c coffee $100 at WILBORN'S GROCERY.

Frank Loyd of Fredonia was a visitor in the city Wednesday.

"Music hath its Charms." Come to hear the music makers and be charmed. Auditorium, Jan. 30, promptly at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ellis and son have returned from Henderson and will reside here. Mr. Ellis will continue in the life insurance business in which he was engaged in Henderson for the same company.

Squire J. R. Postleweight was in the city Tuesday en route to Evansville, accompanying his sister, Miss Mandena who went to consult an oculist for a serious affection of the eye-sight from which she has suffered for some time.

Rev. Wallace Clift, pastor of the Main Street Presbyterian church has resigned and will go to southwest Texas to engage in evangelistic work. Rev. Clift and his family here made many strong friends who sincerely regret their departure.

The Crittenden Atheneum Club gave a bazaar last Friday afternoon and evening which was largely attended and liberally patronized by the best people of the city. The ladies who are friends of the club baked cakes, made candies and other dainties which were sold promptly at good prices. The gentlemen members and their friends also sent gifts from the sale of which a neat sum was realized.

Mrs. J. E. Dean of Crider was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Annie McFee several days this week.

Marion's Florida contingent report all well and pleasantly situated. A picture received here last week represented Master Samuel Eugenheim and little Miss Evalyn Roberts on the back of an ostrich taking a ride.

Ed McFee who is sojourning at Fort Myers, Florida, writes his mother that he is much pleased with the place, the people and the climate.

Longnecker Murder Case.

stand. "About an hour later, he came back by himself and went in Meisenberger's boat and sat down. He pulled out the butcher-knife that belonged to Meisenberger and handed it to him."

The Ructman woman then related how muddy the knife was. This aroused her curiosity, she said, and she asked Wells what had become of Longnecker. "It's none of your business," she said Wells told her in answering. She asked Wells a second time why Longnecker did not return with him. Wells then admitted that he had "put Longnecker away where he wouldn't bother anybody else." The woman swore she asked Wells how did he bother anybody and that Wells replied Longnecker occurred in the presence of Meisenberger.

"The next morning, which was Christmas, we left the island and never stopped until we got to Paducah," the woman continued. "When we got to Paducah we split." That was on Wednesday.

"Friday, Pearl (meaning Pearl Wells) came to Meisenberger's boat and handed me a note saying that Wells had left because he was afraid of being arrested.

"Two days later I got the note, I saw Wells on Broadway and told him the sheriff had been on our boat and had charged us with the murder. Wells told me to keep my mouth and we'd come out all right," the woman testified.

It was several days later that the Meisenbergers were arrested by Sheriff Foster and several patrolmen and lodged in the county jail.

Meisenberger was the last witness to testify for the commonwealth. In telling his story to Judge W. I. Clark, he never varied from the statements made in a confession to the Livingston officials several days ago. Attorney Eugene Graves, of Paducah, who defended Wells, made numerous efforts to confuse both Meisenberger and Bessie Ructman, but was unsuccessful. Meisenberger testified of remarks he had made to Bessie Ructman the morning after the murder while they were en route to Paducah. He said Wells had told Bessie that he would kill his own sister if she told anything on him, and he would kill her (meaning Bessie) if she said anything of the Christmas Eve murder.

The witness reiterated what he told in his confession corroborating the statement of the Ructman woman.

Neither Wells nor Pearl Hughes took the stand in their defense, Attorney Graves evidently believing it advisable to keep them out of the witness chair. However, the commonwealth will call them as witnesses tomorrow against Meisenberger and Mrs. Ructman. What they will swear is of great moment to the authorities, though it is believed the Hughes woman will implicate Meisenberger in the murder.

During the trial Wells sat by the side of his counsel and scrut-

"talked too much." The woman recited how Wells sneered as he told of how he had put Longnecker's body beneath some brush. "The hogs will find him and eat him up, or if the river rises soon, he'll be washed away," Bessie Ructman swore Wells remarked to her. This innuendo every witness closely. His face was pale and his features appeared to grow hard as he heard witness after witness utter words which sealed his doom, and which unless a miracle intervene, will send him to the electric chair for one of the most heinous crimes in the history of Western Kentucky.

Pearl Hughes sat through the hearing calmly, though she was on the verge of breaking down several times.

Death of Mrs Arflack

Mrs. Arflack, wife of George W. Arflack of the Crooked Creek section died Wednesday morning. The interment will be conducted today at the McEgan graveyard near Crooked Creek church. Mrs. Arflack is the mother of Jas. F. Arflack of this city and of J. W. Arflack of the county.

I. O. O. F. Meeting.

STRICKEN WHILE SITTING AT DESK

Produce Dealer Ex at Office in Paducah.

Stricken while seated at his desk at his business office, 210 South Second street, Paducah about 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, Charles F. Jean, 56 years old, president of the Indiana Produce Co., late of Evansville, died half hour later in spite of medical aid which was hurriedly summoned. Heart trouble was pronounced the cause of his sudden death.

Mr. Jean was formerly in business here and is well known in Marion.

Miss Nannie Rochester gave a six o'clock dinner to a few of her friends Thursday, Jan. 16.

The dining table was especially pretty; beautiful crocheted doilies at each place and for its floral decorations vases of narcissus. Covers were laid for six and each guest found her place by a dainty hand painted card which was the work of the charming little hostess.

A most delicious dinner consisting of: 1st grape fruit maraschino cherries, 2nd Potatoes with cheese—French peas—beaten biscuit, chicken croquettes and olives.

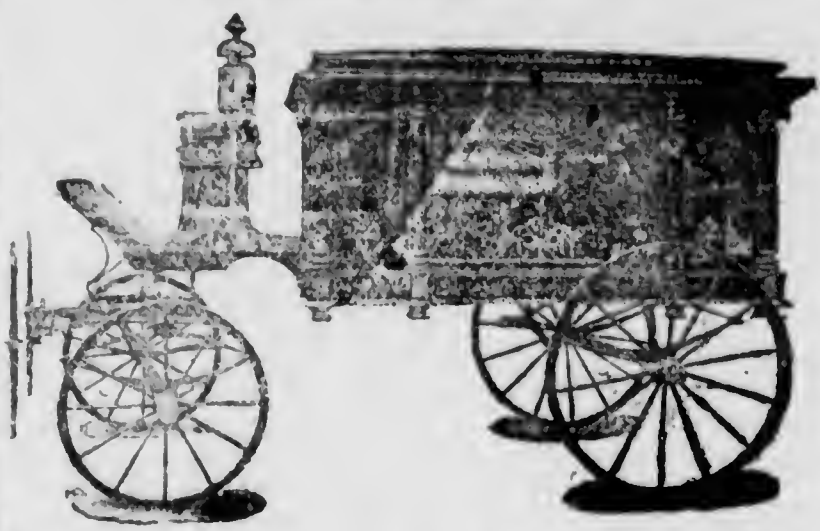

3rd, Fruit salad, nuts.

4th Marshmallow pudding with whipped cream.

5th Coffee, mints.

COMBINATION IS ALLEGED AMONG TOBACCO BUYERS

Grand Jury at Henderson Summons Representatives of Big Interests.
Charge: Create Great Interest.

Pendleton, Ky., Jan. 21.—Is there an understanding among the tobacco buyers of this district?

It is current here that there is and the grand jury has summoned before it the representatives of the Imperial, the American, the Gallahue company, Limited and the John Hodge tobacco companies to inquire into the charge that the tobacco trade in this steaming district has been restrained by a combination among the buyers.

The inquiry has elicited the greatest of interest.

DROWNED AT A FORD.

Carroll County Woman Loses Her Life in a Flood.

Carrollton, Ky., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Jacob Hendrix, forty-eight years old, lost her life yesterday afternoon by drowning, while fording White's Run, on the Rugby road. Mrs. Hendrix had been in Ghent a week nursing a relative and was making her way home in a buggy with Oranus Hopkins, a nine-year-old negro, as driver. The bridges on the Ghent road are under water and the boy not familiar with the roundabout way, got on the wrong road and drove over an embankment, the buggy turning over and over. The boy lodged against a fence and was rescued, but Mrs. Hendrix was drowned before assistance could reach her. Her body was recovered by Dick Lacy, a fisherman. Mrs. Hendrix is survived by her husband and two grown sons, one brother and two sisters.

The horse was cut from the buggy and saved.

Could Shout For Joy.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice, and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism Electric Bitters have no superior. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50 cents at Haynes & Taylor's and James H. Orme's.

Buys Pooled Tobacco.

R. H. Kemp, of this city, a tobacco buyer representing Luckett & Co., of Louisville, Ky., has purchased the pooled tobacco of the Farmer's Union of Sullivan, Union county, Ky. The price has not been made public. Farmers in this county now hope they will get an early sale of their pooled tobacco, since the indications are that the buyers are now ready to bid on the Crittenden county crop.

"Love's Last Tribute."

The mortal remains of Mrs. Lula Wyatt Cassidy placed at rest in the Dycusburg Cemetery Monday eve, Jan. 13th, 1913.

It is with an unusual feeling that we chronicle the death of this little woman so familiarly known and loved as "Miss Lula" after a lingering illness of Bright's disease, so tenderly and carefully nursed by daughters, sisters and friends. Many have developed a beautiful and noble character in spite of a most discouraging natural inheritance and in sharp contrast with unfavorable surroundings. Natural traits and tendencies are not character, but the basis, the foundation for it; they are not the fruit and flower of character but the soil in which it grows—they are not the statue but the marble from which it is chiseled. The power that produces and forms character is free will and the training of the will requires early and continual practice of self-denial. Such was the life of this patient, submissive, resigned, little woman, so delicate and frail. For many years she had a desire to be baptised by the form of immersion therefore favoring the Baptist faith, but the frail constitution forbade feeling and wishing she might sometime grow stronger and then the desire fulfilled. That baptism of desire must have been most acceptable to our Divine Lord as her life of forbearance and self-denial was so beautifully portrayed in her last moments by calling the attention of her daughter Minnie—"Minnie, don't grieve: you see the Gate is opening—yes opening wide for me," and the illumination of her countenance was most beautiful. To her girlhood friend she said, "Maggie, you should pray every day and every night in thanksgiving for your great health. I do not feel that I have been so sinful—but that God will not punish me much. I am ready and willing to go. My favorite Scripture was the 23rd Psalm, 'The Lord is my Shepherd,' and 14th Chapt. of St. John, 'Let not your heart be troubled, I go to prepare a place for you.' Paradise, it is useless to say means a garden, an enclosed garden, a garden of delights always described by the father of the Church as an everlasting garden rich in fruits of an exquisite savor that never decay and fragrant with perfumes that never die—Paradise as a vast grave with rose trees and grassy lawns, rich borders, always green slopes, odoriferous flowers, eternal joys, the abode of the blessed, all that is rich and most graceful in the varied beauties of nature, by the waters of rest in the garden of delights, from which are banished forever all grief, sadness and tears. The tombs of our fathers in the faith from which Christian hope banish all idea of gloom and mourning are rich in representatives of Paradise—trees, flowers, crowns and garlands, an eternal spring, the Divine Shepherd sometimes seen seated upon a flowery bank in a beautiful grove, the departing soul is seen as a dove perched upon a tree or amid the flowers that adorn. The sepulchre stone hath trees and flowers emblematic of Paradise. Can we but hope and feel that she after a life of self-denial, humility, resignation to God's holy will and purified by much patient suffering with baptism of desire, could such a life be questioned? No, ten thousand times no, and the dove like in sweet simplicity soul now resting in the mercies of the Divine Shepherd.

The sweet, gentle manner and smile with all she came in contact will be missed sorely—as all hearts were so keenly touched at the funeral services held at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Dr. J. M. Graves when the choir sang so sweetly, low and solemn "Nearer My God to Thee" and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," realizing they were her favorites, and eulogies of her life pronounced by our fellow townsman, Sunday School teachers who knew her best and loved her most, was universally felt in the whole assembly.

Mrs. Cassidy was born in 1846 and was married to Dr. J. C. Cassidy March 22, 1866, who died several years ago. To this union three daughters were born, Mrs. J. M. Graves, Mrs. Carl Glenn and Miss Minnie Cassidy of Eddyville, Ky. She has one living brother, Mr. Ed Wyatt of Tulsa, Okla., and four sisters, Mrs. M. Sikes of San Antonio, Texas, Mrs. Emma Matchen of Cape Girardeau, Mo., Mrs. D. L. Byrd of Fredonia, Ky.

Mrs. Fannie Byrd was at her bedside. To the devoted daughters, sisters and grandchildren, grief wisely sacred makes us always more tender, more patient and brave. May you have that capacity and resignation: feel the lines below.

"Even for the dead I will not bind
My soul to grief. Death cannot long divide,
For is it not as if our rose had climbed
My garden wall and blossomed on the other side?"

His Stomach Troubles Over.

Mr. Dyspeptic, would you not like to feel that your stomach troubles were over, that you could eat any kind of food you desired without injury? That may seem so unlikely to you that you do not even hope for an ending of your trouble, but permit us to assure you that it is not altogether impossible. If others can be cured permanently, and thousands have been, why not you? John R. Barker, of Battle Creek, Mich., is one of them. He says, "I was troubled with heartburn, indigestion and liver complaint until I used Chamberlain's Tablets, then my trouble was over." Sold by all dealers.

To My Sweetheart; My Wife.

Her young face is softly fair—
Pearl of morning flushed with red—
And her dark brown, silken hair
Makes a glory round her head.

And her voice is soft and low,
Clear as music, and as sweet;
Hearing it, you hardly know
Where the sound and silence meet.

All the magic who can tell
Of her laughter and her sighs,
Or what heavenly meanings dwell
In her kind, confiding eyes.

All her ways are winning ways,
Full of tenderness and grace;
And a winking sweetness plays
Fondly o'er her gentle face.

True and pure her soul within—Breathing a celestial air!
Evil and the shame of sin
Could not dwell a moment there.

Is it but a vision, this?
Fond creation of the brain?
Phantom of a fancied bliss?
Type of beauty void and vain?
No! the tides of being roll Toward a paradise to be,
Where this idol of my soul
Waits and longs for love and me.

Fabulous Value of Chicago

Street Car Lines.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Plans for the consolidation of every transportation line in the city and suburbs, involving property valued at $700,000,000, with a view to entering into an agreement with the city for use of the proposed municipal subway, were discussed by Mayor Harrison and representatives of the road. Five elevated roads and four surface lines were represented. Mayor Harrison expressed himself as well pleased with the results of the preliminary conference, and said other meetings to consider the subject will be held in the near future.

When we consider the fact that Chicago has grown up within the recollection of some of our older citizens the above figures fairly stagger one.

Letter From Princeton, Ky.

We do not know whether the busy readers of the dear old Record-Press, will have the time to read anything we may write from this part of Caldwell Co., yet we have become so accustomed to writing for the Record-Press that it is almost impossible to refrain from it now.

We hope the all people in dear old Crittenden county started the New Year with a determined resolution to live a better life and to make the life of others better and happier.

Our hearts were made sad indeed when we read in the Press the death of our old associate and friend of boyhood days, George W. Perry. None knew him better than I. We were both poor orphan boys when we first met 37 years since. He was an industrious, close student, having educated himself after he became of age. He was ever ready to lend us a helping hand. Though he is dead and gone, we shall ever cherish in memory the fondest thoughts of him.

The tobacco business is on a drag here as it is in Crittenden. There have been a few crops sold to a Hopkinsville firm, but none have been bought by our local buyers. We believe that God will abundantly reward the poor farmers, who have pooled their tobacco and are standing pat against the freeze-out game of the tobacco trusts. The thing to do, is to hold the present crop until we get our price for it if we have to leave out the 1913 crop.

We were just about to become discouraged, thinking that the Record-Press would never find its way to our new home. But our doubts and fears were removed when we received in our mail, Friday, that welcome visitor, full of news from old Crittenden. We are so glad that the kind editor still remembers us.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Compensation.

I saw him across the dingy street,
A little old cobbler, lame with a hump,
Yet his whistle came to me clear and sweet
As he stitched away at a dancing pump.
Well, some of us limp while others dance;
There's none of life's pleasures without alloy.
Let us thank heaven, then for the chance
To whistle, while mending the shoes of joy.

HEARD IN MARION

How Bad Backs Have Been Made Strong—Kidney Pills Corrected.

All over Marion you hear it. Doan's Kidney Pills are keeping up the good work. Marion people are telling about it—telling of bad backs made sound again. You can believe the testimony of your own townspeople. They tell it for the benefit of you who are suffering. If your back aches, if you feel lame, sore and miserable, if the kidneys act too frequently, or passages are painful, scanty and off color, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped so many of your friends and neighbors. Follow this Marion citizen's advice and give Doan's a chance to do the same for you.

Mrs. Hodge Fritts, Marion, Ky., says: "We still use Doan's Kidney Pills in our family, and find them very beneficial whenever one of us have to use a kidney remedy. The public statement a member of the family gave some years ago, praising Doan's Kidney Pills, was correct and it gives me great pleasure to confirm it."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. j16-23 not only keeps cold out, but conserves body-warmth; body-fat serves the same purpose, it enables us to resist unsettled elements and serves as the great source of our body-heat. Greater body-warmth means richer blood, more fat, not obesity but fat which the body consumes for warmth, vitality, resistance-power—as a furnace consumes coal for heat—Scott's Emulsion does this.

A teaspoonful after each meal makes body-warmth healthy, active blood—sharpens the appetite and makes all good food do good.

It drives out and keeps out colds by raising endurance-power and creating strength.

THE WORK OF A REAL SCHOOL

Good Teachers Are as Essential as Buildings.

INTEREST THE COMMUNITY.

The Wonderful Work of Pupils and Instructors at the Thorn Hill School. Children Take a Real Interest in Their Studies.

Perched upon a hill which overlooks a number of houses that appear to be playing leapfrog in their endeavor to get into the valley is Thorn Hill school. In these homes there are cheerful people, and many of the girls and mothers are forced to go into the bottling works to help swell the Saturday pay roll. Naturally one would not expect a splendid building in such a community nor well kept grounds nor a strong school spirit. But all of these things seem to be in the forming at present.

The exterior of the school is rather shabby. Some paintings are missing from the fence, there is no walk, and the doors are scarred. Inside the desks and furniture are mostly old, but there are decorations, and they are child made throughout. The white curtains that temper the sunlight are plain, but have been neatly stenciled in bright, pleasing colors. The big ugly doorway between the two rooms is fringed with a unique portiere, which would puzzle the ordinary mortal as to its manufacture. The secret of the large and many colored beads, that are strung on heavy cords, is that they are made from wall paper. The children had got huge books of samples of wall paper, cut the paper into strips and rolled them into beads.

A line of nails in the door frame showed a brave display of baskets of all shapes and sizes. There was no effort at any slavish pattern, for each child had made a basket the size and shape he or she wished. That the work has proved fascinating is shown by the fact that half of recess time is usually voluntarily given to this work. As the boys have become adept in the use of willow they have been urged to make small stools at home and bring them to school to be topped with strong and beautiful basketry. The teachers have realized the full value of this work, for they are arranging for the older boys to cut and prepare the basket willows from the plants along the streams in the neighborhood. This will allow the child to take the raw material as it occurs in nature and make it into the finished product with the added value that artistic handwork gives.

Gradually this same activity upon the part of the children and their teachers has caught and held the interest of the community. In a comparatively short time the parents have seen that the children would be helped by more finger work and a better perception of form and color. As there was no money beyond the bare conduct of the school the teachers and the parents gave a social and box party. The proceeds of the entertainment have been used to engage the services of an art teacher, who comes out from Frankfort twice a week.

A school garden is being planned for the coming spring, but for fear they may be disappointed at the last moment the children have arranged to cultivate small plots at home. These are to be entered in the contest, which is carried on under the auspices of the Franklin County Fair association.

HOW MUCH MORE COULD BE DONE IF THEY HAD A BUILDING WHICH WAS HANDSOME ENOUGH TO GAIN THEIR RESPECT no one can tell, but they have taken what was at hand and with a fine spirit gone to work to make it as efficient as possible and as close to the activities of the community as possible, and they have succeeded. Under such conditions the building will follow before long. In the meantime the teachers and the parents have the consolation of knowing that, although a school is much better for having a fine, comfortable building, it is a possibility without it.

MARION, KENTUCKY.

Both Were Skinned.

The husband of a woman noted for her extravagance in dress had a terrible dream. He met a strange collection of animals—several foxes, a beaver and some seals—and they had no coats. He wondered and then the beaver explained: "We were skinned for your wife's furs." The man smiled. "So was I," he said.

Best Cough Medicine for Children.

"I am very glad to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Lida Dewey, Milwaukee, Wis. "I have used it for years both for my children and myself and it never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. No family with children should be without it as it gives almost immediate relief in cases of croup." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is pleasant and safe to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by all dealers.

"She Was Bred in Old Kentucky."

Another Marion girl was honored recently when Miss Katherine Yandell of this city was elected President of the Beata Sorority Club at Hardin College, Mexico, Mo. Miss Yandell, the only student from "Old Kentucky," at this great female college is a typical Kentuckian and we predict that she will fill the position with dignity, justice, honor and credit to all.

While you are representing the whole State of Kentucky at Hardin, we of Marion especially, take off our hats to you. Your friends here, and they are legion, have not forgotten you and they remember you each night in their prayers.

NEW SALEM

Some sickness. Plenty of mud. The public roads will soon be impassable.

Fifty per cent of the tobacco crop stripped. None sold.

Miss Clarrie Wolford who has spent the past year, the guest of her grandparents, will leave Monday for her home at Holton, Ind. Miss Clarrie made many friends while in Kentucky, who hate to see her leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wring and son, Forest, who have just returned from Lynchburg, Va., were the guests of T. A. Harpending and family last week. Tom says he can borrow meal anywhere in old Kentucky, hence he returns. Glad to see you Tom.

Ab Henry, of the firm of Henry Bros., was in this section last week and sold Mrs. Mary E. Maham, a handsome monument for her husband.

Uncle Sam Wolford has moved to the home of his daughter, Mrs. James LaRue, since the death of his wife.

If our friend Roscoe Fort, manager of the Home Telephone Exchange at Salem has any more dogs that he wants made into sausage meat, bring out to our cabin. Our dog is in fighting trim, it makes no difference as to weight, anything under one thousand pounds, he will talk and we have the lizard scales to back him any day except Sunday.

Mrs. Florence Harpending and children, Masters Howard and Hayden, returned to their home at Salem, after spending a week with John Harpending's parents.

We went to Cross Roads yesterday evening, but failed to see our old friends the Col. and the Judge. They were off on a fishing trip. We have been looking up our army record and as the Col. and the Judge were in my right, we will later on notice some of our many experience with the aforesaid old comrades.

SURELY BANISHES CATARRH

Where there's catarrh there's thousands of catarrh germs. You can't get rid of catarrh unless you kill these germs.

You can't kill them with stomach medicine or sprays because they can't get where germs are.

You can kill these germs with Booth's HYOMEL, a penetrating, antiseptic, balsamic air that you breathe a few times a day directly over the raw, sore, germ infested membrane. It does not contain morphine or any habit forming drug.

For catarrh, croup, coughs, and colds, HYOMEL is sold on money back plan by Haynes & Taylor. Complete outfit $1.00. Extra bottles of Booth's HYOMEL if afterward needed, only 50 cents. Just breathe it—no stomach dosing. j16-23

Still Save Old Stamps.

A prominent official in the Postoffice Department in Washington tells of the far reaching effects of an insignificant notice published five or six years ago in an obscure little Florida newspaper.

"What was the reason for it," he says, or on what authority the notice was published. I do not pretend to know. But this paper stated that the United States government would redeem at one fourth of their face value all cancelled postage stamps that were returned to the postoffice department at Washington. How anybody could credit such a statement is a mystery. But they did and the notice was widely copied. It at last found its way into the patent insides so much used by small country newspapers. Numbers of people took it as literal truth and began to save up their old stamps. Then our troubles began.

Letters began to pour in from all parts of the country asking about the redemption of the cancelled stamps. And worse than that, express packages began to come in, bringing old stamps to be redeemed. The department was simply overwhelmed. We finally had to employ five or six extra clerks to answer the queries.

Mother-in-Law is Cause for Divorce

New York, Jan. 17.—Mothers-in-law received a severe jolt in the Brooklyn Supreme Court. With one fell swoop, Justice Crane, in a crisp decision, swept away all of the rights of the mother-in-law in the home of her children. Where she formerly reigned like a queen, with the only discordant notes sounded by funny papers and stage comedians, she is now shorn of her glory and power.

Gardner L. Field, a young clerk, was married in 1905 to a pretty girl neighbor. They rented a little home and Field decided that his mother, who had no means of support, should come to live with them. Mrs. Ida L. Burlingham, the mother, no sooner entered the home, than, according to her daughter-in-law, Cupid volplaned out of the window. Friend wife left home and the husband denied his support. She immediately brought suit for maintenance, and to-day the husband's complaint she would not live with him was dismissed.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our friends in Dycusburg for their kindness shown to us during the illness and death of our dear mother.

Mrs. J. M. Graves,
Mrs. C. T. Glenn,
Miss Minnie Cassidy,

Held Mass Meeting.

The members of the Steming District Tobacco Association held a mass meeting at the factory last Thursday, at which the five year pool was started in this county. Nearly all present signed the pledge. The canvas, in other parts of the country, will be started immediately. We learn that in the other counties of the district that the growers are signing up right along; in fact we have reports of some meetings where every grower, present, signed the five year pledge.

If the tobacco growers of this district can see their way clear to pool their tobacco for five years in one organization, and keep that organization under good business management we are confident that many of the troubles that they have been having, in selling their tobacco will be eliminated.

MAROOINED ON HILL

Twenty-five Hundred People in Trouble in Hopkins County. Due to Flood.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 19.—Twenty-five hundred people are marooned on the hill at Ashbyburg, Hopkins county, according to a telegram of appeal received by Gov. McCreary from Judge J. B. Bradley today. The situation is caused by the flood in Pond river, tributary of Green river.

Gov. McCreary notified Judge Bradley that the State would furnish military tents, and under his instructions Col. J. Tandy Ellis, acting adjutant general, sent Capt. Carl Norman to investigate the situation.

We are authorized to announce Charles W. Love of Sheridan as a candidate for Jailer of Crittenden county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary. Mr. Love is a son of Andrew Love, deceased and his mother was a Miss Minner and his wife was Miss Effie Moore which gives him strong family connections, the Loves, Minners and Moores being three of the county's best families.

WARNED TO GO SLOW.

Tobacco Pool May Be Held To Be Farm Products "corner." Pooling Tobacco Crops in Danger of Being Decided a Violation of Anti-Trust Law.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Until congress by special act exempts from the criminal restrictions of the Sherman law, "corners" in farm products like the Kentucky tobacco pools lawyers in the Kentucky delegation here believe the poolers should proceed with caution. They have been studying the decision of the supreme court last Monday in the Patten cotton corner case, and have reached the conclusion that since corners are commodities and have been declared a violation of the Sherman law, the Kentucky farmers had best go slow.

The court specifically said that corners purely in character were exempt from the provisions of the Sherman law. Therefore if the Burley Pool in Central Kentucky, the Green River Pool and dark tobacco combinations entirely do away with their connection in Ohio, Indiana and Tennessee, they have nothing to fear in the opinion of the lawyers.

In the meantime, alarmed by the attitude of the supreme court, Representative J. C. Cantrill, author of tobacco census act will press his bill specifically exempting farm produce pools from the operations of the criminal section of the Sherman law.

The bill provides that such pools as the Kentucky Growers combination shall be free of the anti-trust law operation even when interstate. Mr. Cantrill will ask the next Democratic caucus to indorse it, and after he has pointed out what he considers to be the peril of the farmers' pool, he believes that the caucus will rush his message through the house. Senator Bradley, if the house acts soon, will be asked to press the matter in the senate.
